Prosecco di Conegliano Vincenzo Toffoli

Tuesday, January 04, 2005

KEVIN COBB owner, Fruition Coffee & Wine Gallery

"There are two things I truly loathe about the end of the holidays. First is taking down the blasted tree. Second is the thought that sparkling wine season's over.

"Well, the tree must go, but sparkling wine is here to stay. And Toffoli is one reason why.

"This wine is made by a firefighter who moonlights as a winemaker in Italy's Veneto region. What could be better? Fine little bubbles dance on the tongue and, with just a dash of residual sugar (one-half of a percent), the flavor is reminiscent of a crisp green apple.

"Oysters or other shellfish pair well with the lovely structure of this fine sparkler, or drink it on its own and toast to another year -- even if it's well past New Year's!" About $13 at Fruition Coffee & Wine Gallery, New Seasons Market-Concordia, Addison's Marketplace, Market of Choice and Ashland Wine Cellars
